RED DRIVE FAILS

Bolshevists Suffer Big Losses In Offensive Against Tsaritsin

Paris Oct. 18.—The Supreme Council has received messages stating that General Judenitch is expected to take Petrograd in two days.

KRONSTADT SURRENDERS

OFFENSIVE FAILS

London, October 18.—A War Office communique says: "A Bolshevist offensive on a large scale against Tsaritsin began on October 11 and failed after two days with severe losses. The Cossacks operating to the west of Tsaritsin crossed the Don on a wide front, and took twelve hundred of the enemy prisoners, while farther westward the Cossacks occupied the line along the river Khoper, from its junction with the Don to Tishanskaya, and captured Kalach and Pavlovsk, taking two thousand prisoners. An entire Red regiment was destroyed.

PEACE IS RESTORED ON NORTHWEST BORDER

Troubles Between 'King' So And Chinese Officials Are Adjusted

(China Press Correspondence)

Chengtu, Szechuen, October 4. —The borderland troubles in the Northwest have been finally settled. "King" So and the Chinese managed to come to terms on the amount of opium likin he was to pay, and the fuss ended.

One good result is the disgrace of one of the military commanders. This fellow seized innocent tribesmen and had them unmercifully beaten to make them pay him money. It is to be hoped he will be caught and punished.

Next week the officials are going to have great celebrations in honor of the establishment of the Republic. Among other functions will be a dinner to all the foreigners in the city. This used to be an annual affair but was discontinued a few years ago owing to the anti-missionary spirit of a person not now in Chengtu. The Civil Governor who speaks English and is a friend of missionaries is reverting to the old custom.

A strange fever has been prevalent of late in Chengtu. Our foreign doctors, Canadian and French, cannot find the term. At a loss how to treat it they have rung the changes on quinine and antipyrin.

The Chengtu Fortnightly Club and the Union University have arranged a series of lectures for the winter months. Captain A. J. Brace leads off next week by an illustrated talk on the "Last Year of the war." Other subjects are. "The Secret Societies of Szechuen," "The Campaigns of Chang Hsien-chong, the plunderer of Szechuen;" the Mineralogy of the Northwest," etc., Mr. J. H. Edgar will read a paper on the "Interior of Australia" and perhaps a second on "Economic Conditions in Tibet." He knows both lands well and his lectures should be intensely interesting as his versatile pen is widely known.

MANY INJURED IN RIOT IN SUNKIANG

All Shops Closed And Silk Store Wrecked As A Result Of Boycott

A riot took place in Sunkiang Monday as a result of the anti-Japanese boycott movement, according to reports received by the Shanghai Intendant, Mr. Wang Kung-ting, yesterday. The shops of the entire city are on strike. A large number of pedestrians and police constables were injured during the commotion.

The trouble arose from the attempt of the Union of All Classes in the city to investigate alleged Japanese stock in certain hosiery factories. This enraged the mill hands of the factories, who immediately called for a strike and held a huge demonstration at the west gate. Police failed to control the mob and a free to all clash ensued.

Root Urges Government Of Law, Not Men, In Speech At American Bar Meeting

Couples Russian Chaos And Unrest In America---Deportation Remedy For Radicalism Urged By Attorney General Charles D. Newton

Lawyers from many sections of the country and from Hawaii and Porto Rico, gathered in Boston for the forty-second annual convention of the American Bar Association, heard a notable plea for "a Government of law, not of men," made last month by Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, speaking as the Chairman at a conference of the delegates to the convention. Mr. Root coupled in his references a description of the chaotic condition of Russia and the conditions of unrest which he said now exist in the United States.

Contrasting the high cost of living with the fact that in spite of it there was never such extravagance, the former Secretary added that never previously had there been such difficulty in getting the ordinarily industrious people of common sense down to work. "One of the conditions the war has produced," he continued, "is that intellectual and moral attitude in which law and limitations on individual action are held in low esteem."

WOULD DEPORT RADICALS

Deportation as the most effective means of solving the problem of radicalism in this country was advocated before the Attorney General by Charles D. Newton, Attorney General of New York. Mr. Newton, who is also counsel for the New York Legislative Committee to investigate Bolshevism, said that as a first step to stem the flow of radical utterances "it will become necessary to prosecute and convict some of the more radical ones who have openly defied the law by flagrantly preaching the doctrines of violence and overthrow of government."

A campaign of intensive instruction in the ideals and traditions of America in the schools, and country-wide organisation of world war veterans into actively patriotic legions were suggested as additional remedies.

"A direct connection between the Bolshevists in Russia and the radicals in the United States, maintained by Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, "envoy" of the Bolsheviki, was discovered by the New York legislative committee," Mr. Newton said. Martens, he added, confessed that he had registered as a German alien in England in 1914, was a revolutionist in Russia in his youth, and spent three years in Russian prisons.

"Documents seized by the committee," the Attorney General continued, "disclosed that the functions of the Embassy, whose affairs Martens directed, included furnishing legal aid to radicals charged with violation of the Espionage Act; co-operation with the various Socialist organisations in the accomplishment of industrial unrest; dissemination of radical literature extolling Bolshevik rule in Russia; furnishing radical speakers; maintenance of a correspondence bureau by which every radical of note in the United States was kept in touch with the progress of revolutionary propaganda, and the distribution of the appeals of Lenin and Trotsky to the extremists in America.

"Working hand in hand with the Martens-Bolshevik Bureau, the committee found the Rand School of Social Science, whose charter it is my aim to revoke. This institution is nothing more or less than a school of radicalism, a preparatory school for the I. W. W. and other extremely violent organisations.

"What the Bolsheviki did in Russia their American fraternals, the Industrial Workers of the World, seek to do here. Don't be deceived, the doctrines are twin.

Will Move On Profiteers

The Attorneys General, after a discussion of the high cost of living, agreed that it was advisable for them to take concerted action to check profiteering.

Samuel M. Shields, Attorney General of Utah, was one of several speakers who charged the retailers with a large measure of responsibility for swollen prices. He asserted that he had positive proof that an organisation of retailers in his State employed a man to telephone each member of the "ring" every Monday what the prices would be for that week on certain articles. Jobbers Mr. Shields said were pledged not to sell to retailers who refused to abide by these prices. This organisation, he remarked could not be reached by the anti-trust laws.

The American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology heard from its Committee on Insanity and Criminal Responsibility a report recommending the adoption of a program which would take the question of responsibility of felons and misdemeanants out of the hands of the jury. The committee also recommended that no maximum term be set to any sentence and that no parole or probation be ganted without suitable psychiatric examination.

The Committee on Probation and Suspended Sentences reported that grave injustices accompanied the system of imprisonment for nonpayment of fines, especially in the South. The short sentence, it held should be abolished in this country as it has been in Great Britain.

TREATY RATIFICATION TO HAVE EFFECT HERE

Clause Deals With Agreement On Whangpoo Conservancy Board's Work

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, October 16.—Among the measures which will follow the ratification of the Peace Treaty is the bringing into effect of the agreement of 1902 concerning the Chinese import tariff and the agreement of 1905 concerning the establishment of a board of conservancy on the Whangpoo River at Shanghai.

This is believed by Shanghai officials conversant with existing agreements to refer probably to a clause giving permenancy and continuation to present arrangements.

The Whangpoo Conservancy Board has been at work since 1905, though the original agreement is that of 1901, and the arrangements then entered into with the Chinese Government are still in effect. There have been, according to Mr. A. C. Stocker, secretary of the Board, two supplementary measures, each directed at ensuring that the conservancy work get the money arranged for. That in 1905 provided that Tls. 400,000 a year should be paid and when, after a time, it failed another arrangement was concluded in 1912 whereby the Conservancy Board was empowered to take 3½ percent of the annual customs instead. The peace protocol of 1901 is the present agreement and, though the Peace Conference had the power of repealing or rewriting it entirely, there is little ground for believing they did anything except endorse the existing arrangement.

ANGLICAN CHURCHMEN OPEN FALL SESSIONS

Addresses Heard At Meeting Presided Over By The Rev. C. J. Symons

The Church of England Men's Society held its first meeting of the 1919 session last night at the Church House. The Rev. C. J. Symons presided, and in his opening remarks regretted the absence of the Dean who is still confined to his room.

Mr. Symons outlined the objects of the Society and mentioned that the committee had already met, and that an attractive list of lectures and discussions was being drawn up to interest the members on Tuesday evenings.

Mr. Graham Barrow spoke upon the impressions that he received at the C.E.M.S. Conference at Birmingham last June. He said that the society was like the world at large in that there was a general discontent over existing conditions and a genuine desire for improvement. The conference gave him three distinct impressions. First the enormous power that the society might have if run upon the right lines; second, the fact that the world was divided into two classes —those who had something to say, and those who had not, and third, the intellect and tact of the presiding genius of the meetings—the Archbishop of York.

The speaker said that when all the rules had been carefully framed, the idea underlying them all was, Should the C.E.M.S. be an 'extensive' or an 'intensive' society. There could be no doubt that it should be the latter. The society should be a leaven which could leaven the whole lump, and even in Shanghai a body of keen men would be able to create a public opinion which would make the place what it boasted to be, but what it was not, a Model Settlement.

Mr. Reader Harris, speaking from the point of view of the soldier, said that there was undoubtedly a spark of religion in all men which was plainly seen in the men in the firing line and now that the war is over it was well to do something to fan this spark into a flame. How was the Church to do it? From his own experience in France he said that it was the short and bright informal service that attracted the soldier, and he thought that today the Church might get away from the ordinary Prayer Book services sometimes and in their place have something in the nature of a religious meeting at which there should be a few appropriate prayers, some stirring hymns and a well pointed address, not lasting too long.

This, he was sure, would call men to church in the same way in which the voluntary services in France attracted large congregations.

Mr. Downie agreed with Mr. Reader Harris. He said that there was much in the soldier's life which bore a strong resemblance to the churchman's. A good soldier required courage, discipline and loyalty, and it was these three qualities which made the good Christian.

Mr. Edney Page said he would not like to see the services of the Church interfered with, but he recognised that something of the nature suggested by Mr. Reader Harris would be acceptable to the masses.

Mr. Chatley spoke of the influence that sympathy had in appealing to people. He was sure that a body of sympathetic Christians would greatly strengthen the Church and her work.

The Opera

"Boris Godounov" is at once the most ambitious opera the Russian Company have put on and the one for which no praise of its performance could well be too high.

It is safe to say that such a production of Moussorgsky's work in London would have left no seat unoccupied. The purely Russian character and nature of the story, as well as the novel richness of the music do not make for a direct appeal to the lover of the stereotyped love-interest plot, with arias, duets, stanzas and the usual devices.

The appeal of "Boris" depends on the fascination of the hearer in none of these things: but rather upon a realisation of the dynastic struggles of Russian history, with some notion of the religious and superstitious regard attached to the throne. These give coherence to the work to one unacquainted with the Russian tongue.

The great Russian sets out to solve the problem of drama with music, borrowing nothing from foreign sources, and scarcely affected by the reforms of the old opera going on in the rest of Europe. Hence at once the originality and difficulty of "Boris" to the opera goer.

No pains were spared over any part of the production and the result was an artistic triumph. As there are no less than fifteen principal characters, the great actors only can be singled out, when all were so fine.

Mr. Hochloff as "Boris" is beyond praise. I spoke of his "Rigoletto" as a character sufficient to make fame, and many remember his "Scarpia" on Saturday. It seems incredible, to me for one, that such a singing and playing of "Boris" could follow. It sounds and looks as if weeks of separate rehearsal had been given. The Varlaam of Mr. Volnoff, chief of the two begging friars, who proves the impossibility of complete intoxication, is inimitable.

Miss Burskaya (I give the order of appearance on the stage) will be remembered. She was as fine as ever. The audience remained during each scene in absolute silence. At the curtains the artists were again and again recalled Mr. Busanousky, a name I do not remember to have seen before, had some affecting music to sing as Prince Shouisky. In the list below many favorites will be recognised:

Boris Godounov	Mr. Hochloff
Xenia	Miss Ivanova
Treodore	Miss Zirianova
Gregory	Mr. Preobragensky
Marina Michek	Miss Burskaya
Prince Shouisky	Mr. Busanovsky
Inn keeper	Miss Zirianova
Varlaam	Mr. Volnoff
Missail	Mr. Voronoff
Pimenn	Mr. Magsky
Rangoni	Mr. Ulianoff
The nurse	Miss Losieva
Police official	Mr. Tulchinoff
Police	Mr. Ardatoff
Priest	Mr. Gorlenko

Conductor: Mr. Vasilieff

Commencing on Thursday night the original time, 9:15 will be reverted to. A minority, it would seem, find the earlier time convenient; but as the Lyceum cannot be filled night after night by a minority it is to the company's interest to conform to the hours of the majority.

PEKING AGAIN PAYING ARMY

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 18.—Li Shih-hao, Acting Minister of Finance, announces that the Government is in receipt of considerable funds from the Customs and Salt Revenue Surplus, and that a large proportion of these funds will be devoted to paying off the army. Payments to the troops will begin on October 25 and last until November 5, the men to receive 80 percent of their pay in cash and the balance in interest bearing Treasury Bonds.

AMERICAN SILK PLANTS AFFECT D BY STRIKES

(Reuter's Service)

New York, September 20. (By Mail).—Strikes continue in the manufacturing silk districts of Patterson, N. J., and Scranton Pa. The troubles are gradually lessening among the dyers of Patterson, and the disposition there is to regard the troubles as about at an end until October 10 when a 44-hour week has been promised.

In the Scranton district where many plants are located the strikes have been of a disorderly character. A minimum wage of $15 a week is asked and a 44-hour week is demanded. This is the first serious trouble that has occurred in the relatively newer silk districts in Pennsylvania where many mills were established to get away from the unsettled labor conditions in Patterson. At this time there are few signs of compromise but it is thought the whole trouble will be settled before the national conference on labor meets at Washington next month.

Reports coming in as to the damage from the Texas storm indicate a possible loss of 100,000 bales of cotton in South Texas.

An interesting bit of gossip is that some of the American cotton in the Liverpool stock will eventually go to Germany. It is said that much of the cotton in Liverpool is consigned, and the stock there is large even for normal times. Another feature that is receiving a good deal of attention from the trade is the old crop congestion in Southern warehouses which makes many wonder what is to become of the crop when it begins to move in volume unless demand increases in proportion and absorbs it more rapidly than usual.

The labor situation became acute again by reason of the steel strike, although apart from this there seems to be a disposition on the part of labor chiefs to go slow on strikes for a time and await the results of efforts being made to cut the cost of living. Among many employers also, there has appeared a tendency to fight wage increases, even to the extent of closing down establishments.

In other words the results of the Boston police strike have encouraged employers to believe the time has come to call a halt in labor's demands and to get production back on to a more normal basis. The proposal has been made by some of the labor leaders that the President of the United States be made a member of the American Federation of Labor, with power to suspend strikes in the case of national emergency.

Attempted Suicide Case Before Court

Charged with attempting to take her own life, a Chinese woman was arraigned yesterday in the Mixed Court but when questioned as to the reason for her act refused to give any explanation whatever. A Chinese stated that he had seen her begging in an alleyway off Dixwell Road and that she had been given some rice but refused to eat. Later he had observed that she was sick and in pain and he had notified the police. They found her with a wound on her neck where she had attempted to cut her throat. The Court directed that she be sent to the Siiza Refuge.

A Chinese chauffeur, who pleaded in the Mixed Court that he was trying to get his master to the railway station in time for a train, was fined $10 yesterday for reckless driving. Witnesses testified that one motor-car was attempting to pass a tram on Bubbling Well Road and the accused in another attempted to overtake and pass both, with the result that he narrowly avoided colliding head on with an approaching machine. He avoided that only by cutting in ahead of the two with which he had been racing.

Boycott Conspiracy Case Is Dismissed

Three Defendants Acquitted Of Charges Presented By San Sin Cotton Mill

The case brought by the San Sin Cotton Mill against a Chinese shipping broker, a yarn broker and a coolie on charges of conspiring to defraud the public was dismissed yesterday in the Mixed Court. The prosecution alleged that the defendants during the Japanese boycott made use of a certain mark, namely "S16," belonging to the plaintiff on two bales of Japanese yarns.

Mr. Y. S. Ziar prosecuted. Mr. W. S. Levinson was counsel for the shipping broker and the coolie, while the yarn broker was represented by Mr. Reader Harris. After the prosecution had presented its case, Mr. Levinson applied for acquittal of his client, the broker, on the ground there was no evidence against him. Mr. Levinson also submitted that there was no conspiracy and that no one was defrauded.

SEMENOFF'S ACTIVITIES REPORTED TO PEKING

Steps Taken To Check Coup He Is Said To Have Planned In Outer Mongolia

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 17.—The Peking Government has been informed by its representatives in Heilungkiang that General Semenoff, supported by Japanese officers and agents attached to his staff, is conducting an anti-American propaganda campaign in Trans-Baikalia and Northern Manchuria. At the same time Semenoff, while pretending to be friendly to China, is placing his agents everywhere in Manchuria and is attempting to extend his military power both in that territory and in Western Trans-Baikalia.

Other reports on Semenoff's activities strengthen the Peking militarists in their belief that he is planning a coup on a large scale in Outer Mongolia; and Chinese forces are being rushed to the Northwestern frontiers in daily increasing numbers. These latter reports are undoubtedly exaggerated and in some cases manufactured in Peking for the purpose of providing Little Hsu with an excuse for strengthening his army in Outer Mongolia. But they have made an impression on the people here and have succeeded in arousing real fear among the Mongolians. Little Hsu's measures taken as a result of the partially manufactured Outer Mongolian scare have, moreover, been thorough enough to make Semenoff think twice before undertaking so large a venture as the invasion of Outer Mongolia and the capture of Urga.

Thus the only real danger from Semenoff lies in Northern Manchuria, where Semenoff's men have repeatedly interfered with the proper working of the Trans-Siberian Line, and where they are even now occupying towns along the line and endeavoring to police the railway zone assigned to the Chinese. If this goes on officials here fear that there will be friction between Semenoff's troops and the Chinese detachments along the line; and any difficulties of this kind will furnish the Japanese with a reason for stepping in to clear up the trouble. The Japanese once they step in, will never step out of their own volition. Hence Peking official anxiety as to what Semenoff may do next in Manchuria.

REPORT ON BANK NOTES IS ISSUED IN PEKING

Currency Of Banks Of China And Communications Still Far Below Par

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 16.—The Public Loan Bureau has reported to the Ministry of Finance that during the period from July 29 to September 30 Bank of China notes to the amount of $5,827,950 and Bank of Communications notes totaling $4,321,760 were redeemed and withdrawn from circulation by accepting them as full legal tender for the purchase of 7th Year Domestic Bonds.

The campaign for the withdrawal of the depreciated Peking notes is still going on, the President and the financial authorities of the Government being determined to bring these notes back to par again. In view of this it is interesting that the notes have not yet shown an upward trend in the market, their present price—in spite of the fact that over $10,000,000 of notes issued by the two banks have already been withdrawn from circulation—being at just over fifty.

In local financial circles the present low price of the Peking notes is attributed to bad management by those in charge of the two banks; and there would unquestionably be a change in the management of these institutions were it not for the fact that their governors and directors have the backing of the Anfu Club. If the Anfu loses its grip as a result of lack of funds or of the failure of Wang Yi-tang at Shanghai it is regarded as certain that the two Peking banks will have a new management and that their notes will go up to the neighborhood of par.

INQUIRY AT TIENTSIN ORDERED BY PEKING

No Action Taken With Regard To Proposed Removal Of Gen. Yang I-teh

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, October 19.—No further official action has been taken with regard to the proposed removal of General Yang I-teh. It appears that General Tsao Kun will shortly visit Tientsin to inquire into conditions there and the fate of General Yang will depend chiefly on General Tsao's report.

It is understood that the Government has declined to allow Messrs. Wang Keh-min and Wang Yu-ling to return to Peking to discuss peace prospects with the Government. They have been instructed to remain at Shanghai with the other Northern Delegates.

The Anfu Club continues to urge the appointment of Mr. Chou Shou mu as Premier, so far without success. It is generally believed that Mr. Wang Yi-tang's efforts to enter into negotiation with the South will have to reach a conclusion without a change of Premiers. The Government's attitude in this matter is said to be that Mr. Wang has received all the support that should be necessary. The obstacles to his success are not created by the North, and the South would be no more likely to accept him if changes were made in the Government. On the other hand it is thought that the Anfu Club already considers that Mr. Wang's mission has failed and is endeavoring to bring about a change of Cabinet in which Mr. Wang would receive a portfolio to which he could return with a measure of triumph.

PEKING ASKED TO MAKE STATEMENT ON TREATY

Wellington Koo Also Advises Declaration On Shantung Should Be Issued

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 17.—Dr. Wellinton Koo has cabled to the Government from Paris recommending that it make a public statement of the reasons why it cannot sign the Treaty of Versailles and that at the same time it issue a declaration to the Allied Powers regarding the Shantung Question. This latter statement ought, in the opinion of Dr. Koo, to be made previous to the opening of the League of Nations Conference.

Dr. Koo's first proposal is meeting with favor here, and it is likely that a statement will be issued to the effect that China can no longer sign the Treaty in view of the fact that it has already been ratified by several other Powers. As for the Shantung Question, there is a good deal of opposition to a public statement of the Government's attitude at just this time, the more so as the date for the opening of the League of Nations Conference has not been fixed and now appears somewhat remote. It is felt here that China should make no Shantung declaration until just before the opening of the Conference; and in no case will action be taken on this proposal by Dr. Koo until after the return of Chief Delegate Lu Tseng-hsiang.

Drug Company Here Planning Extensions

Four More Factories Will Be Built In Shanghai To Meet New Needs

The American Drug Company is to establish a chain of stores throughout China and in cities where agencies have already been opened buildings will be renovated so that uniform architecture of both exteriors and interiors will be one of the features.

The Chung Fu store in Hankow has already been acquired by the local firm. Branches are also planned for Soochow, Tientsin and Canton while agencies at Peking, Changsha and Amoy will, with those in other cities be made branches.

In order to meet the needs of the new chain of retail stores, four more factories will be erected in Shanghai to produce every sort of pharmaceutical commodity. The buildings will be placed alongside of the present factories of the American Drug Company on Ward Road. Three of the buildings will be three stories in height and one will be one story. All, however, will be so designed that additions to their height can be made without difficulty.

The plants now under preparation will cover a total ground space of more than 100,000 square feet. A number of new men to assist in the drug enterprise are expected soon from America, four of them coming on the Empress of Asia on its next trip.

RICE SALES TO JAPAN AROUSE HUNAN PEOPLE

Charges Made Against Tuchun In Letters Of Protest Received In Peking

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 17.—The Members of Parliament from Hunan are in receipt of information from that province that Tuchun Chang Ching-yao has come to an arrangement with Japanese merchants by which he is to deliver to them all the rice that he can purchase in his territory. General Chang has, accordingly, sent out orders to all the district magistrates in Hunan that they are to buy up all the available rice in their respective districts at the lowest possible prices. This rice they are to store in the district capitals until instructed whither to ship it.

With the intention of thwarting General Chang's scheme for enriching himself at the expense of their province, the Hunan Members of Parliament held a meeting and discussed ways and means of keeping their rice at home. A formal protest is to be lodged with the Government, and the Provincial Assembly of Hunan is to be urged to take the matter up locally. Some of the parliamentarians favor popular agitations against Chang Ching-yao, but it is pointed out that as Chang has received permission to establish martial law in Hunan and is prepared for any emergency, action of this nature would be likely to end in serious trouble for the agitators. Hence it is hoped that pressure from Peking and a publicity campaign throughout Hunan will achieve the desired results, and that Chang will sell no Hunan rice to the Japanese.

Peking, October 18.—The Peking Yi Shih Pao reports that the Japanese are making preparations to secure for home consumption a large quantity of foodstuffs from the three Manchurian provinces. The Japanese authorities in Manchuria have already approached General Chang Tso-lin for permits to export eight million shih, (40,000,000 bushels), of cereals from Manchuria, and there is reason to believe, says the Yi Shih Pao, that this request will be granted.

If the plan is realised Japan will be able to take out of Manchuria almost one half of her annual production of grain, which amounts to 20,000,000 shih, or 100,000,000 bushels.

Independence Day Celebration

(China Press Correspondence)

Kashing, October 15.—On Independence Day more than 2,000 students from various schools assembled in the Kashing City Hall, at eight o'clock in the morning. There they performed the ceremony of saluting the flag, bowing three times to this emblem of their hopes. Then they paraded the streets, cheering as they walked along, "Long Life to China"! At last they came to the railway station before which a heap of Japanese goods was piled. These were soon transformed into a huge bonfire, surrounded on all sides by thousands of intensely interested spectators. It is said that the Japanese goods burnt by the students on that day were worth $300. The girl students of Kashing were especially enthusiastic in pushing the boycott, even being willing to burn up their fine clothes made of Japanese cloth, as evidence that their determination was not of a five minutes' duration, but forever.

One of the notable features of Independence Day was the giving of intensely interesting plays by all the schools. The ones presented at Kashing High School are described below by Mr. Kuh, one of the Kashing leaders in patriotic work. Another unique play was given in the Second Normal School, depicting the selling out of Korea to Japan years ago, and the subsequent suffering of all classes of the people [illegible]

Autumn Fashions As Seen In Shanghai Shops Reveal -:- Brilliant Colorings -:-

BY HELEN WILLIAMS

THE COMING SEASON is again marked by the brilliant colorings which have been in vogue in dresses, hats and coats. Predominant shades are the true ones of autumn, gold, red and many rich tones of brown. Evening dresses are going to be brighter and more elaborate than they were during the war and the gold and silver dress will be in great demand. Evening wraps are following no set style this season. Some are full at the bottom, some are dolmans, and others are straight lined, but the materials used are all rich and brilliant, and a great deal of fur will be used as trimming. The draped shirt and the tier skirt are proving most popular, but no matter what the exact fashion of the skirt may be, the widths are just the same as they have been for the last year.

Flowered georgettes and chiffons, with flowers of scarlet, yellow and brown, are being shown by Hall and Holtz. They can be used in making the modish Russian blouse, and their colorings are such that they form a most attractive contrast to the fall suit. A beautiful new material, typical of everything luxurious, is also being shown here. It is ninon with exquisite designs worked into the material in fine silky chenille. Evening gowns of the chenille-ninon are always soft and beautiful, and this material is particularly adaptable for this purpose as it falls into most graceful lines. Extremely rich corsage flowers from Paris are shown. These are to be worn with evening gowns or afternoon frocks, and they can be used in combination with almost any color, as the corsage colors range from dainty pastel shades to the most brilliant hues.

The heart of every woman will rejoice when she hears that Squires-Bingham have a new assortment of the most exquisite crepe-de-chine and silk underwear. This underwear is made up in sets of four pieces. There is one set in a delicate corn color, trimmed with the daintiest embroidered lavender flowers, and lavender ribbons. Another set is white with yards of filet insertions and edging, and still another is a light blue crepe-de-chine, trimmed with fine Valenciennes, with squares of embroidered georgette set in. Silk corduroy negligees of apricot and white are also shown. These negligees are most practical, as the silk corduroy has all the warmth and durability of the ordinary corduroy, and it also possesses all the beauty and grace of silk.

Sweaters of many shades and styles, manufactured by the famous sweater makers, Gantner and Mattern, are seen at Silberman's. There are silk slip-on sweaters, and there are also great woolen sweaters, which are almost a necessity in this changeable weather. The model hats from New York and San Francisco are very attractive. There is a large assortment of evening gloves, and also street gloves. The street gloves are of silk, lisle and kid. There is a fine display of Holeproof silk hosiery.

Knox hats of all types, with the ever present touch of smartness always associated with this style of hat, are being shown at Boyes, Bassett and Co. There are the strictly tailored, silk beaver hats so much in favor with the "tailor made" girl, and there are the ever popular turbans. The rakish Tam O'Shanter of soft silk materials, and also of inter-woven ribbons is always most becoming to the younger folks. The evening frocks displayed here, many of which have been sent over by Lucille, are lovely, both as to style and color combinations. There are some beautiful evening coats, and one of the prettiest is a simple jersey silk wrap, eminently suited to the "Jeune fille." The beaded bags are really wonderful and they continue to hold their own amongst the fashionable. There are many to select from and the designs are all very original.

Whiteaway-Laidlaw are displaying many useful articles amongst which is a splendid line of felt boudoir slippers. These slippers are made up in fine dainty colors, and in this case their beauty is doubly attractive for they are very serviceable, as the inner sole of lamb's wool insures warmth and comfort. The novelty silks, which are chiefly used as trimmings are beautiful both as to color and quality. The new taffeta and satin ribbons which have just arrived are indeed lovely. For the cold, damp weather which is even now on its way, the coatings here are just the thing. The colors are rich and beautiful and the close weave and texture of these coatings gives great warmth.

Silver slippers and brocaded and satin evening slippers are greatly enhanced by rhinestone buckles, as they are very brilliant in design. The Walk-Over Shoe Co. is showing a fine line of these buckles, and also of steel and bronze buckles. The bronze buckles are most attractive on the colonial slipper for afternoon wear. A large shipment of Phoenix silk hosiery has just been received in the popular grays and browns. There are also some lovely black silk stockings with the open work designs. Some new fall walking shoes, in brown and with the semi-heavy sole, and very smart in cut, are being shown. The colonial slipper, which has proven so popular, is considered just the thing for the tea dansant and other afternoon affairs.

SHANGHAI FOOTBALL CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Votes Tablet To Its War Dead —100 Players Start Season— Talk Of Three Teams

At the annual general meeting of the Shanghai Football Club held yesterday evening at the Shanghai Rowing Club with Mr. R. Grimshaw in the chair supported by Messrs. W. C. G. Clifford, M. Tonkin and G. Craigie Ross, honorary secretary and treasurer, the report and accounts for the season 1918-19 were adopted and passed.

The chairman in his remarks to the meeting read out the names of the Club's members who had been killed in the great war of 1914-18 as follows:

Roll of Honor.—G. A. Benn, E. J. Brown, C. J. V. Bussy, A. A. Drew, A. N. Duffy, C. E. Dunstan, E. J. Hayward, S. Henmann, E. C. Hope, L. E. P. Jones, P. Lambe, G. R. Miller, H. E. Molloy, J. C. Porter, C. H. L. Symons, E. C. Symons, and in their memory it was decided to erect a suitably inscribed memorial tablet in the pavilion.

The Club starts the new season with a playing membership of over 100 players and the chairman in his appeal to the meeting to get members to turn out as they could referred to the great opportunity the large selection of players offered to the winning of both the league and cup tie honors.

It was decided at the meeting that owing to the scarcity of colors the Shanghai Football Club's second eleven would this year play in whites. Mr. Forshaw, in addressing the meeting, suggested that with so large a playing list three teams should be entered for the league but the question was left to the decision of the Committee. The following officers were elected for the coming season: G. M. Jamieson Esq., president; E. C. Pearce, Esq., vice-president; R. Grimshaw, Esq., vice-president: committees —W. J. Brown, Esq., W. C. G. Clifford, Esq., A. H. Leslie, Esq., M. Tonkin, Esq., balloting committees W. J. Gande, Esq., E. P. Graham Barrow, Esq., G. Craigie Ross, Esq., Hon. secretary and treasurer.

ST. JOHN'S WINS IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Takes Both Singles And Doubles In Shanghai College Match—East China Title Next

St. John's and Shanghai College met in the third round of intercollegiate tennis Monday afternoon on the former's courts.

The singles, as was customary, opened the tournament in the morning in which Tyau (S. J.) won easily from Voong (S. C.) by 6-3 and 6-0. Another Voong of Shanghai College, however, beat his opponent Yang in a close game of 6-4 and 6-4.

The doubles was perhaps the most thrilling if not the most brilliant of the matches. The two teams were about equal and for most of the time it looked as if St. John's were hopeless. But the tide of luck suddenly changed and through the steady and patient work of Tyau and Mung (S. J.), Voong and Thoong were decisively defeated in the third set. The final score was 5-7, 6-4, and 6-1.

In the remaining two singles Tyau had not much difficulty in beating Voong but Yang was given with a hard rub. St. John's came out of both successful, however, with the score 7-5 and 6-3; and 9-7, and 6-4 respectively.

By winning from both Nanyang and Baptist St. John's was entitled to compete with the winner of the out-Shanghai-league for the East China title. This game will most probably come on the 1st of November.

At The Mixed Court

Five dollars presented to a health inspector "to pay his ricsha expense in calling" landed Woo Tsung-zee in the Mixed Court yesterday for attempted bribery. He had said nothing, but the circumstances were such, the Court held, that it could mean nothing other than he wanted to induce the inspector to be more lenient in his rat-proofing requirements.

The accused is a shroff for a Chinese firm. Sanitary Inspector R. W. Burton testified that he had called repeatedly at the premises to see that the regulations were carried out. He had heard that the man had tried to see his foreman some days before—an act that he regarded with suspicion. So when he received a message that the accused wanted to see the inspector, he ignored it. The man followed him as he left and motioned for him to step into an alley. The inspector shook his head, whereupon the Chinese slipped a bank note into his hand. He took the money and the donor and delivered both to the police. His fine yesterday was $15 plus the bribe.

China Political Notes From Chinese Press

President Hsu Shih-chang has received reports from Hongkong that Generals Kao Shih-ping and Kao Tsung-fung, who figured conspicuously during the Kirin fracas, are now in Canton and will take an active part in the Southern administration.

Mr. Liang Shih-yi reports that he had an interview with General Tsen Chun-hsuan, and states that Tsen is still advocating peace and that only a section is clamoring for preparations for war. The situation is unaffected.

The Cabinet has wired to General Chen Shu-fang, Tuchun of Shensi, stating that since Commander Chang has despatched troops to the advanced post at Chihsinglin, he should be ordered to hold his defense lines to prevent the incursion of routed soldiers. He should not, however, permit an infringement on Szechuen territory, thereby causing trouble.

The Government proposes to establish wireless telegraphy between Urga, Urumtsi and Kashgar. In order to facilitate communications, Mr. Duckley, the engineer, has already had the equipments and instalments shipped to this country and he will go to Urga to erect the station soon.

The Cabinet has telegraphed to General Yang Tseng-hsin, the Tuchun of Sinkiang, ordering him to examine all Turkish subjects entering Chinese territory and to forbid Mohammedans in Sinkiang from joining them.

It has been decided not to resume hostilities upon the expiration of the Tibetan armistice, but simply to assemble a strong force at Kangtse as a precautionary step.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has instructed the Tuchun of Fengtien, General Chang Tso-lin, to prevent General Semenoff from coming eastward and to frustrate any possible treachery.

Changes In Cabinet At Peking Unlikely

Denied Chu Shen Will Resign Post In Favor Of Gen. Wu Ping-hsiang

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 16.—The Cabinet is authority for the statement that Chu Shen, who is acting concurrently as Minister of Justice and Acting Minister of the Interior, will not, as reported in the local press, resign the latter post in favor of General Wu Ping-hsiang, at present Chief of Police in Peking. The report of this particular change has been persistent in connection with rumors relative to the organisation of a formal Cabinet, or at least the partial reorganisation of the present Chin Cabinet. Hence the Government has denied all specific reports of impending changes with a view to killing rumors connected with Cabinet reorganisation. There is no likelihood that the Cabinet will be altered at the present time.

THE MANAGEMENT.

Pahang Rubber Estate Meeting

The sixth annual general shareholders' meeting of the Shanghai Pahang Rubber Estate, Ltd., was held yesterday afternoon at the offices of Messrs. Meyer and Measor, the general managers.

There were present Messrs. F. Sallou (chairman) E. A. Prince (director), and other shareholders representing in all 24,150 shares.

The notice calling the meeting having been read Pere Sallou spoke as follows:

The Chairman's speech follows:

Gentlemen: The sixth annual report and accounts having been in your hands for some days, I will with your permission, take them as read.

"Before commencing the usual business of the meeting, I sincerely regret having to record the death of one of your directors, Mr. C. W. Wrightson, whose death took place last June. Mr. Wrightson took an active interest in the welfare of the Estate and by his death the Company has sustained a very great loss.

"Since the last report, we have planted up a further 144 acres bringing the total planted area up to 754 acres. During the year the area of the Estate has been increased by 5¾ acres, the title for this area being issued by the Government under the stipulation that the area shall be reserved as a water supply reserve and not used for cultivation.

"Our crop fell short of the estimate by 11,739 pounds but this is fully accounted for by the influenza epidemic and by the low price of rubber. As regards the former, the labor force was entirely disorganised, many deaths occurring amongst the Tamils and a large number of Chinese leaving the Estate. The low price of rubber affected the output to the extent that during the months July to September a number of tasks were not tapped owing to this work being unremunerative while the price of rubber was below 40 cents.

"The cost of production shows a reduction of 1.69 pence per pound on that for the previous year, the principal savings coming under the headings of rubber production and upkeep of producing area. For this year an estimate of 200,000 pounds has been made. Weeding costs, although a trifle below last year's cost, are still somewhat high but given favorable conditions this year, it may be possible to effect a saving on the estimate of $1.50 per acre. The general position in respect of diseases is not worse than normal and our agents state that they do not anticipate much trouble in the future.

"The supply of labor through the year was sufficient for the essential needs of the Estate though additional labor could have been employed with advantage. The restrictions in recruiting having now been removed, the prospects for the coming year are much better. With the exception of the influenza epidemic, the health of the Estate has been generally good throughout. The reports on the Estate by our visiting agents and Messrs. Barker and Company continue to be of a satisfactory nature and we have every reason to be satisfied with the manner in which Mr. Birekmose has managed the Estate.

"Now turning to the accounts, these call for little comment. The year under review, as you are aware has been one of many difficulties but the result under the circumstances may fairly be considered satisfactory. The net profit for the year after making the usual allowances for depreciation, amounts to Tls. 4,607.11. This is slightly below the profit for the previous year but as you know the heavy rise in silver has greatly affected our tael earnings.

"Last year we had an average exchange of Tls. 54⅛=S. $100 and we are this year working at an average of Tls. 45¾=S. $100 and rubber in stock on June 30, 1919 has been calculated at Tls. 45=S. $100. With the balance of Tls. 5,218.03 brought forward from last year's accounts, the total standing to the credit of profit and loss account including this year's profit is Tls. 9,825.14 which your directors recommend carrying forward. Our sales which realised an average price of 1s. 5.65d. per lb. amounted to Tls. 40,115.64 against Tls. 58,798.69 for the previous year.

"Two forward sales have been made as follows:

One ton per month for the whole of 1920 @ 80 cents per pound; One ton per month January-June, 1919 @93 cents per pound; .The prospects for the coming year are encouraging and the outlook is better than it was and I hope that we may soon begin to emerge from the adverse conditions that have existed so long.

"Before concluding, I would like to take this opportunity of expressing our appreciation of the good work done by the Singapore agents and the secretaries and general managers.

"That, gentlemen, is all I have to say but before asking you to pass the report and accounts, I shall be glad to answer to the best of my ability any questions regarding the Estate or accounts.

No questions being asked the following resolutions were put forward and passed.

"That the Report and Accounts for the year ended June 30, 1919, as presented and circulated be passed." Proposed by Pere F. Sallou, seconded by Mr E. A. Prince.

"That Mr. M. Speelman be re-elected a Director of the Company." Proposed by Mr. E. A. Prince, seconded by Mr. J. de Zutter.

"That Mr. E. A. Measor be re-elected a Director of the Company." Proposed by Pere F. Sallou, seconded by Mr. D. J. Donne.

"That the appointment of Mr. E. A. Prince as a Director of the Company be confirmed." Proposed by Mr. J. de Zutter, seconded by Mr. A. S. de Jesus.

"That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected auditors of the Company at an annual remuneration of Tls. 300 for Shanghai and Singapore." Proposed by Mr. A. S. de Jesus, seconded by Mr. E. H. Prince.

IMPARTIAL & PROGRESSIVE

SHANGHAI, OCTOBER 22, 1919

A Free Press In China?

UNDER date of October 19, we have received the following appeal from the management of the Wei Yih Daily News, a Chinese-owned and managed daily newspaper published in Peking:

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: The Tokio correspondent of the Wei Yih Daily News wrote an article on "The Danger of Japan" which was published on September 21. In the article he pointed out the dangerous situation which exists in Japan from both the mental and material sides. He put emphasis upon the democratic tendency of the Japanese people.

About ten days ago, Mr. Obata, the Japanese Minister, called on Mr. Chen Lu, Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, charging the Wei Yih Daily News with committing the crime of insulting the Mikado. Mr. Obata demanded immediate suspension of the publication of the paper. Mr. Chen Lu, however, refused but consented to refer the case to the legal authorities.

Now the editor of the paper, has been arrested and is to be tried. What kind of punishment is to be inflicted, we will wait and see.

This is the first time that a foreigner has interfered with our right of freedom of speech which is granted to us by the Provisional Constitution of the Republic of China.

In truth, the writer of "The Danger of Japan" had not any intention of insulting, or of committing a libel against the person of the Mikado. In one paragraph, he quoted from a certain Japanese professor, stating that "the inviolability of the Japanese Mikado under the constitution might now be interpreted in a new way."

We are now sending you the original text of the article and the proclamation of the Metropolitan Police Bureau for your information.

We have to lay the case before the world for judgment. You are appealed to and requested to advocate justice and reason for us. We are,

Yours Sincerely,
The Wei Yih Daily News.

Reuter's, under date of October 17, brought us an account of the arrest of this editor that differs in no way from the one given in the above letter. We take it therefore that the facts are exactly as stated and this being so Mr. Obata was ill-advised in bringing his charge and the Peking authorities hopelessly wrong in their procedure. The article appears to have been merely the setting forth of the economic and political situation that exists in Japan today, and that we know in truth does exist. The Tokio correspondent of the Wei Yih Daily News was in duty bound to discuss the critical state of affairs in Japan and his editor would not have been performing his duty to his public and to his country if he had suppressed the article.

The fact that a Japanese professor was quoted as stating that the "inviolability of the Japanese Emperor might now be interpreted in a new way," does not involve an insult to the Japanese Emperor. It is merely a statement of political fact. Nothing indeed is said about the Emperor personally. The discussion is one concerning the office he holds, and its relationship to the Japanese people.

Reuter's says that the result of this trial is awaited with keen interest in both foreign and Chinese circles in the capital. We should say it ought to be. It is a dangerous interference with the freedom of the press. For Mr. Obata's part, by such actions as this he is likely to precipitate a very spirited discussion of the very subject he wishes to suppress. For the action of the Chinese authorities we can find no excuse whatever.

France's Amazing Caillaux Case Now Awaits Trial

The French Senate's Commission having finally finished its inquiry into the charges of treasonable conduct preferred against Joseph Caillaux, former Premier of France, there is apparently no reason why the most sensational trial ever staged in France should not be begun. That Caillaux will face his Senator Judges, sitting as a High Court, in the immediate future, however, is deemed unlikely.

In October, just at the time when the trial should come up before the Senate, general elections are to take place in France, and there is a unanimous desire here that the trial of Joseph Caillaux and its sequel should not be used as a point of issue by candidates or against them. Caillaux still enjoys a wide popularity in France, and many are they who firmly believe in his innocence, while others are equally firm in considering that Caillaux should pay the price of his mistakes.

With the trial still in abeyance during election time, there will be no possibility of any candidate for Parliament using as his password the fact that he voted for Caillaux's acquittal, or any other using opposite terms according to the points of view of their constituents. Every political party in France is anxiously watching the development of the Caillaux inquiry and is keenly partisan of the trial. But there is not one party which wants to face its constituents with the Caillaux affair as the principal point at issue.

Other points can easily be raised during the elections, but it is certain that were Caillaux to be tried and either condemned or acquitted before the elections, Deputies and Senators going up for re-election would immediately seize this as their platform.

LAWYERS COMPLAIN

On the other hand, there is yet another reason why the Caillaux trial will not come up before the Senate as soon as might be expected. Caillaux's lawyers are very much dissatisfied with the evidence furnished them for their purpose, and they point out that many documents which have been used against Caillaux have never been brought to their knowledge. They particularly insist on seeing documents communicated by the American authorities at the time of the Bolo Pasha inquiry, in which, it is alleged, much use is made of Caillaux's relations with the convicted and shot traitor.

In a letter addressed to Premier Georges Clemenceau, who, as head of French Military Justice, had Caillaux placed under arrest and the inquiry opened, the former Premier's lawyers —Edouard Demange, a Radical Socialist Deputy; Marius Moutet, a Socialist Deputy, and M. de Moro-Giafferi, who defended Senator Charles Humbert when he was acquitted of a charge of commerce with the enemy—point out that the evolution of the inquiry has gradually revealed that "the accusation against Joseph Caillaux is based simply on political opinions and ambitions."

Furthermore, they state that Attorney Becker's communications to Ambassador Jusserand, in which figures the name of Count Minotto, who is supposed to have met Caillaux in South America, have never been seen by any of them, while the Court of Inquiry has made use of these documents against their client. In a reply sent the lawyers Edouard Ignace, one of Clemenceau's Under Secretaries, says he is not in possession of these documents and that he can but sanction their communication to the defenders if the judicial authorities so decide.

Parliamentarians and lawyers, however, are not the only ones interested in such matters, which at first sight appear to be of a trifling nature. The whole of France has its eyes turned toward the capital, and now as the time of the trial draws nearer the Caillaux affair becomes the subject of all conversations, for Caillaux for years was one of the political idols of the country. His rare qualities of statesmanship won him the affection of thousands and his popularity went on increasing until the crash came early last year. His early days as a Deputy soon showed him to be a past master in the questions of finance, while the development of his knowledge of international affairs rapidly opened up for him a high position in the political affairs of his country.

CAILLAUX FOND OF MONEY

Joseph Caillaux, like other politicians, had his weaknesses, but he was proud of his and openly admitted his great ambitions. It may have been these ambitions, far superior to those of any known statesman, that finally lost the former Premier. Though born of an exceedingly rich family, Caillaux had a greed for money, and being a first class financier, for he many times directed the finances of his country, he was in a position to utilise his stock exchange knowledge.

But if reports and rumors are correct, he is said to have gone further than this and to have wanted to make use of state secrets in his possession. His two great ideas were to dominate and get rich. But those who have followed his policy today point out that his desire to dominate made him lean toward Socialism, while his race after riches carried him into the hands of the capitalists.

Politically Caillaux was the leader of the left group in the Chamber of Deputies. He was himself a Radical Socialist, but he had the full support of the Unified and Independent Socialists. Even now these two parties support him, and often during any heated financial debates in the Chamber of Deputies cries of "Bring back Caillaux!" have been heard and applauded. There was no greater figure among the radical element of French parliamentary life than Caillaux. He was the recognised head of his group and for years was made the leader of the opposition because others considered him the "powerful man" in Parliament.

ADMIRES AMERICA

Caillaux's policy was all one of social reforms in the country, but he was also for closer relationship with Germany. He made no attempt to hide his opinions. His foes regard him as violently anti-Anglo-Saxon. Reports say he even opposed American intervention in the war, but in conversations at various times Caillaux showed great admiration for the American people and its army.

Till 1909 Caillaux was one of the "Tiger's" best friends and this friendship continued in private, but in politics the two men became bitter opponents. Caillaux, with more advanced ideas than his adversary, was then veering more and more toward extreme pacifism, and his policy showed such a turn that many were they who even doubted of his patriotism.

It was then that the roads between Clemenceau and Caillaux parted and the former, looking toward the conservative element in Parliament, there can be little doubt that it is thanks to him that France today walks with her head upright. But to convict Caillaux before he leaves the Premiership of France would be the crowning act of the "Tiger's" political career.

It was Clemenceau who, during a memorable special sitting of the French Senate, of which he is a member, disclosed the numerous defeatist plots destined to make France humble herself before her hereditary enemies. It was at this sitting of the Senate on July 22, 1917, that Clemenceau rose and accused the then Minister of the Interior, Louis Malvy, who has since been tried by the Senate itself and condemned to banishment for five years, of closing his eyes and ears to the plots put afoot for the overthrow of the country of which he was a Minister.

CALLED MALVY TRAITOR

"Monsieur Malvy," said Clemenceau at that time, "I say you are a traitor to your country. While I shall support the Government, I shall refuse to vote confidence in a Minister of the Interior who makes himself the accomplice of pacifists and defeatists."

But Clemenceau went further, accusing politicians of subsidising Le Bonnet Rouge, a sworn defeatist and pro-German newspaper. A few days later the editors and publishers of this sheet were arrested following the discovery of a check for 150,000 francs on Duval on his return from Switzerland, and it will be remembered how mysterious was the death of Vigo-Almereyda, the editor of Le Bonnet Rouge, in Fresnes Prison.

Caillaux's opponents seized upon this to say that Almereyda had been done to death because he held secrets which should not be known, while others said he committed suicide. Nevertheless, the mystery remains as complete today as it was then. But this case was the first link in the long chain of treason which was slowly binding up France.

In it, as in all the other cases of treason and espionage, all of which have been tried and the leaders condemned, one found the name of Caillaux.

CAILLAUX FIGURED IN ALL

He figured as a witness in all of them, from the Bonnet Rouge case via that of Bolo Pasha down to his own. His own trial by the French Senate, sitting as a High Court, is considered here the climax of all the other affairs of intelligence with the enemy during the war and also of plots to overthrow the present regime of France.

In order to enable readers to get a better understanding of this sensational case at present occupying the attention of the whole of France, and in order to give a clearer understanding of the facts which have led up to Caillaux's arrest, it would perhaps be better to study the man's life and political career.

Joseph Caillaux was born on March 30, 1863, at Le Mans, of an old French "bourgeois" family. His mother would often tell him he had ancestors who fought for the conquest of England, though this he was never able to confirm. Yet it is no secret that Caillaux professed anti-British views. One of the former Premier's grandfathers was a member of the French National Assembly after the French Revolution, while another held an important position under Napoleon I. The family was related to Empress Josephine, Napoleon's wife.

Caillaux's father was for a long time chief engineer for the Western Railroad of France, but in 1871 took up politics. He that year became Minister of Public Works. He was a member of the Conservative group of the French Chamber of Deputies.

Joseph Caillaux himself first entered Parliament in 1898, when he defeated, as Republican candidate, the Duc de la Rochefoucauld, his Royalist opponent. For ten years previous to this Caillaux was Inspector of Finances, and his early days in the French Chamber soon revealed him to be a past master in the domain of finance. But a year later, when he was yet a young man, Premier Waldeck-Rousseau first made use of Caillaux's talent and intrusted him with the portfolio of Finance in his Cabinet.

MADE BUDGET CHANGES

He held this post for just over three years, during which time he carried important changes to be made in certain French taxes, notably those on alcoholic beverages and sugar, and his departure from the Ministry was much regretted. He continued, however, to take an active part in debates on financial questions, and his thorough knowledge of his subject and the means he displayed in solving difficult problems confronting the country soon brought him popularity and he rapidly became a political idol.

In 1906 Georges Clemenceau called upon Caillaux to administer the financial part of his Ministerial program. It was while in this Ministry that Caillaux introduced and finally caused to be passed in both Houses his French income tax, which for a brief period lessened the popularity he enjoyed. In 1909 came the fall of the Clemenceau Cabinet and the parting of the two great politicians.

Early in 1911 Caillaux returned to the Ministry, which was then under the Presidency of Albert Monis. He remained, however, but two months in this Cabinet. At the end of June of the same year Caillaux saw the crowning of one of his ambitions, that of becoming Premier of France. He also administered the Ministry of the Interior but gave himself up more to international politics than he had done previously.

It was during Caillaux's tenure of office that war with Germany for a second time within fifty years was only just averted. The Emperor of Germany, Wilhelm II., with his thirst for war and his desire to domineer over the whole world, was then making attempts to provoke France over her African colonies and particularly Morocco.

All other means having failed to intimidate the French and negotiations to all appearances being so slow, the Kaiser ordered the cruiser Panther to proceed overseas and cruise off the coast of Morocco, near the port of Agadir. Europe was then sitting on the edge of a volcano threatening to break into eruption at any moment. The whole world looked to France to avert what was sure to be a world war, as was proved in 1914.

Caillaux, with his Minister of Foreign Affairs, M. de Selves, had vainly tried to convince the Germans of France's good faith, till as a last resort he decided it would be better that France should lose a part of the Congo in Central Africa, but retain Morocco for France and peace for the whole world.

While this was a satisfactory solution in his supporters' eyes, Caillaux was bitterly criticised at that time, and even now, during the inquiry into his alleged misgivings toward his country, the "Agadir incident," as it became known here was unearthed and the story of the negotiations with Germany probed. As an international affair this incident closed in 1911, but heated debates and discussions in the French Parliament continued.

Caillaux's policy of a closer understanding with Germany had not made itself quite clear at this time, but his critics seized all conceivable opportunities to play it against him even then. Some went as far as to say that while he had instructed de Selves to carry on the negotiations with Germany, Caillaux was secretly consulting with von Kiderlen-Wachter.

What was alleged to be proof of this was the intercepting of a cipher message from the German Chancellor to the German Ambassador in Paris and which was supposed to have told the latter to "deal with Caillaux." He is more advantageous." The truth was never known, however, but Caillaux passed through one of the critical periods of his Administration just at that time.

Caillaux had no sooner finished with this matter than he was accused of helping Turkey to negotiate a loan in France of 500,000,000 francs. In some secretive way the loan was advanced to the Ottoman Empire, but later an inquiry was opened and here it was that first mention was made of Bolo Pasha. The Turkish loan had been conducted through the Banque Perier, where Bolo had a fictitious account. As a friend of Caillaux and of the Egyptian Khedive, who was later to be deposed, Bolo advocated the Perier Bank to get in subscriptions for the Turkish loan.

Very shortly after, however, the loan was declared illegal by Caillaux's successors and the bank condemned to pay 8,000,000 francs fine. Such a sum never existed in the bank, but it was charged that, thanks to the influence Bolo and Caillaux exercised in circles higher up, the money was found and the fine paid. Little need be said of the money advanced Turkey, for it has become a well known fact in France that the money was used by the Ottoman Empire against the Entente in 1914.

Caillaux left the Ministry of his own accord on Jan. 10, 1912, following an unpleasant session before the Senate's Commission on Foreign Affairs. In his own opinion the great successes of his Administration were the social reforms passed during that period and his policy of a better understanding, "rapprochment" he termed it, between France and Germany.

In 1913 Caillaux, as leader of the opposition, overthrew the Barthou Ministry, this notwithstanding the powerful support Barthou had from President Poincare, made doubly more powerful by Poincare's dislike for Caillaux. The latter, a bitter opponent of the President all through his political career, had equally bitterly opposed Poincare's election to the Presidential chair. In this Caillaux had the support of Clemenceau, who for vaguely known reasons also opposed Poincare. Caillaux then held the portfolio of Finances, with the same success as on previous occasions. In the winter of the same year there started in Le Figaro a violent campaign against Caillaux and his policy, which went as far as to mingle into his private affairs and with a view, he says, to blackmail.

Letters exchanged between his wife and the former Premier were made use of, and Caillaux used all means in his power to stop the campaign, which was headed by Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro. The stories published by Le Figaro were in reality the first news of Caillaux's alleged questionable patriotism.

The affair had the sequel which every one here remembers. Unable to stand the attacks made against her, Mme. Caillaux decided to see Calmette herself and put an end to his campaign. What passed between these persons will never be known, but it is supposed that it was after a stormy interview and in a fit of uncontrollable temper that Mme. Caillaux shot Calmette dead.

She was immediately arrested and interned in the women's prison of Saint Lazare in Paris. Joseph Caillaux the next day resigned his Ministerial post and gave himself up to the defense of his wife. After benefiting by many privileges and an internment which lasted three weeks Mme. Caillaux came up for trial and was acquitted.

RE-ELECTED IN TRIUMPH

A short time later general elections were held all over France and despite this blot on his life Caillaux was re-elected by his constituents of Le Mans by an overwhelming majority. His return to Parliament was gladly welcomed by most members of the Chamber of Deputies, who knew that in Caillaux they had a powerful financier and politician.

Then came Aug. 1, 1914, and the declaration of war by Germany. Although against all war against Germany, Caillaux, being still of an age to serve in the French Army, rejoined his regiment. He was made Paymaster General of the French forces. Here Caillaux met his first real enemies, for his haughty manners and changeable temper were unanimously disapproved. Matters went so far that Gen. Gallieni, who then commanded the Paris forces, took disciplinary measures against Calliaux. His political friends, however, had the matter quashed and soon after Caillaux left the army and returned to political life.

At that time the Battle of Charleroi had just ended in the defeat of the Franco-British forces, which had retreated to the Marne. Paris and the French Parliament were in a great state of excitement and the Government had decided to leave the capital for Bordeaux. The city emptied itself of its population. Caillaux, who had remained here, made his way to the Chamber of Deputies, where faithful friends had congregated to wait for him and get later news from him.

In the course of their conversation Caillaux is alleged to have remarked: "The only thing for us to do now is to negotiate for peace." He offered to carry out negotiations and concluded by saying, "Germany will be lenient."

ALLIES SWORE TO STICK

Shortly after this conversation became known, Theophile Delcasse, who was then Minister of Foreign Affairs, came with the welcome news that the Treaty of London, whereby the Allied nations agreed to conclude no separate peace, was signed.

At the Ministry of the Interior was Caillaux's friend and right hand man, Louis Malvy. He convinced the latter that a big field for French propaganda was open to the French in South America, and that he might go out there and study the political and economical aspects of the various South American countries. Malvy in his turn convinced the Viviani Cabinet, and Caillaux sailed for Argentina early in September, 1914. The result of his investigations was never properly recorded, but Caillaux points out that his visit had much to do with the decisions taken by the South American republics to either declare war on Germany, break off diplomatic relations with the Central Empires or maintain a neutrality favorable to the Entente.

What later the French authorities and the American thought of Caillaux's propaganda will be found further on for the charges brought against him at the present time make certain use of his trip to Argentina, going so far as to accuse him of having had communication there with German Ministers and emissaries.

On his return to France Caillaux gave himself up to the affairs of his country, and his continual presence at the Chamber meetings was often commented upon. Finances being his favorite and professional theme, the discussion of war credits occasionally brought Caillaux into the debates. Otherwise little was known of his political affairs till 1917.

It was at this time that there appeared to blow over the French armies, and indeed sometimes over the Allied armies, a sinister breeze. Dissatisfaction among the soldiers seemed to take greater proportions than was ever expected. Though face to face with a powerful enemy, the French troops appeared to be the victims of some mysterious power from behind. While lulls in the trenches were frequent and often long, just at the moment when the people behind expected big moves the war behind the front seemed to be waged with renewed activity.

Politicians of high standing seemed to become enmeshed, while others of an equally high standard were attempting to probe the source of this defeatist campaign. Newspapers were the usual weapons employed, though anonymous letters and pamphlets were known to be sent to the front and to the troops garrisoned in the rear.

A violent anti-defeatist campaign started by the Royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, had its epilogue in the French Senate on July 22, 1917, at the extraordinary session held on a Sunday following a number of secret meetings.

But a few days before Le Bonnet Rouge had been suppressed by the French authorities and the editors and publishers, as recorded above, arrested, following the denunciation of Leon Daudet, who reported that the newspaper was in the hands of the Germans and that German money was subsidising it.

CLEMENCEAU ACTS

Clemenceau, who was just as well informed as Daudet, the editor of L'Action Francaise as to the defeatist campaign being conducted in France, decided he would bring the matter to the Government's attention officially by making known his charges against Malvy in the Senate.

The Government, then headed by Alexandre Ribot, promised to take action, but it was not till Clemenceau and Daudet resumed their attacks on Malvy, going so far as to denounce him in the Chamber of Deputies, that an action was taken. Finally Malvy called upon the Chamber to raise his parliamentary immunity and give him a chance to present his case before the Senate sitting as a High Court. His wish was granted, and after a lengthy inquiry he was brought up for trial.

From then onward the authorities unmasked other cases of treason, and less than two months later Bolo Pasha was in turn arrested. It was at the beginning of this case that the American authorities played a role which was to become more important as the pacifist movement came to light here.

Caillaux was then accused of being Malvy's "evil spirit" which directed the affairs of France. Some allegations went as far as to say that he also controlled the French Prefecture of Police when the post of Prefect was held by his friend, Marcel Delanney.

BOLO PASHA APPEARED

Then early in December, 19[illegible] came the first cables from Washington repeating messages exchanged between Count Bernstorff and the Berlin Foreign Office, and in which according to the legal authorities here, there was abundant proof that Bolo Pasha was fast and thick with Joseph Caillaux, and that attempts had been made by the latter to bring the war to an end in favor of Germany through pacifist propaganda in Allied and neutral countries.

Other facts having come to the knowledge of the Clemenceau Cabinet, notably alleged trips to Switzerland by Caillaux, where he is said to have met German agents, decided Gen. Dubail who as head of the Paris garrison and therefore chief of the city, which was under martial law, to ask the Chamber of Deputies for the lifting of Joseph Caillaux's immunity, also that he might be brought to justify his acts during war time.

In his letter to Parliament Gen. Dubail gave the following as his reason for his request to have Caillaux appear before his judges:

"There are serious presumptions that M. Joseph Caillaux during the present war has pursued the

A Little Astronomy For Everybody

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Please answer the following questions: (1)—Is the sun a planet or a star? My friend insists it is a planet because the nearest star is about four light-years away. (2)—Why do Mercury, Venus, Mars, etc., look like stars if they are only planets? (3)—Does the earth look like a star to a man supposed to be on Mars or Jupiter?—Two Students."

The frequency with which such questions are asked proves the utility of answering them. Popular ignorance of astronomy and of the simplest facts about our relations to the things surrounding the earth in plain view of every eye is colossal. But things are improving in this respect. I have recently had letters from two mothers living in widely separated parts of the United States, one of whom is bringing up her little girl and the other her little boy in a knowledge of the "ordinances of the heavens," and both of them tell planets from stars, understand the phases of the moon and know the principal constellations and the great stars that have separate names. Those children when they have grown up will thank their mothers for an education that will give them distinction as well as pleasure during all their lives.

Now, for answers to the three questions asked above:

(1)—The sun is a star. Why should your friend think that a star must necessarily be enormously distant from the earth like the one he refers to (Alpha Centauri), which is four light-years away? The sun instead of being four light-years away is at a distance of about one 63,000th of one light-year; in other words, while it takes a wave of light four years to come to us from Alpha Centauri it takes a similar wave only about 8 minutes and 20 seconds to come from the sun.

This shows that the distance of Alpha Centauri is about 250,000 times as great as the distance of the sun, and since the two are somewhere near equal in actual luminosity while the intensity of light varies inversely as the square of the distance, Alpha Centauri appears to our eyes to be only one 62,500,000,000th as bright as the sun, although if, as might have been the case, we were as near to that star as we are to the sun it would appear as bright as the sun now does to us, while, on the other hand, the sun would twinkle afar off in the sky with a brilliance about equal to that of Alpha Centauri as it is actually seen from the earth. Unless you fix firmly in your mind the fact that the sun is a star you will always find yourself astray in matters of astronomy.

(2) Mercury, Venus, Mars, etc., look like stars, although they are not stars, but planets, because they are so far from us that our unassisted eyes cannot see any details of their surfaces or even their outlines. Being many millions of miles away, they are virtually mere points to our eyes, but illuminated by the sun, and therefore, visible, as dots of light. The resemblance of their light to starlight is due to the fact that it really is the reflected light of a star (the sun), and that, owing to distance, their surfaces are contracted to round points, as explained above.

A practised eye readily detects a difference in the appearance of a planet from that of a star. The stars twinkle more (large planets seldom twinkle at all), and the light of the planet is less intense and concentrated. However, owing to her brilliant reflective quality, Venus, at her brightest, and when near the horizon, shines very like a supereminent star. But the smallest telescope, or even a strong opera glass, will, at such times, reveal the fact that she is not only a planet, but that her apparent shape, for the time being, is that of a crescent moon.

(3) Yes, seen from Jupiter or Mars the earth would look as much like a star as those planets do when seen from the earth. The sunshine reflected from the different parts of the earth's surface would all be blended into a shaft of light, the diameter of which would be so small that it would seem to come from a mere indistinguishable point.

From the moon, however, owing to its much greater nearness, the earth would appear not like a star, but like a moon, about fourteen times larger than the moon appears to us. When seen as a star, from Mars, for instance, the earth would probably show a distinctive color, as Mars does to our eyes.

truction of our alliances and of having seconded the efforts of our enemy, crimes punishable by various codes of military justice."

This seemed to indicate that Caillaux would face a court martial, and, indeed, the matter was turned over to the Third Paris Court Martial, the same which had instructed the Bolo affairs and which was yet to play other roles in affairs of intelligence with the enemy.

HIS RELATIONS WITH BOLO

In a speech made on the same day, in answer to Gen. Dubail's charges, Caillaux was frequently obliged to mention the relations he entertained with Bolo and other notorious pacifists and defeatists.

"I am reproached with having maintained my relations with Bolo even after an inquiry was opened against him, although he was still at liberty, and that I was told by Ministers whose duties called upon them to follow up the inquiry that Bolo would remain free, that the accusations were unjustified. At the time I wrote Bolo the letters brought to play against me today one could meet the highest of French and Allied officials in Bolo's home. Even Capt. Bouchardon, the Judge Advocate for the court martial, treated my missives as 'casual.'"

HAD WARNED CAILLAUX

Before his departure, however, Loustalot had warned Caillaux and said he thought that Madame Caillaux, who was then alone, might care to meet this banker and through him other influential personages in the Italian diplomatic world. It was thus that Caillaux made the acquaintance of Signor Vavallini, who during the Bolo trial was condemned to death by default for treason against France and who, today, is facing his Italian military judges on a charge of intelligence with the enemy. His accomplices—Marquise di Ricci and Signor Brunicardi—are also up for trial, although the two latter have been provisionally released.

If Caillaux is to face a trial it is well known here that the most serious charges that will be brought against him are his trips to Italy and his connections with alleged German agents there, while it was from Italy that the first news came of Caillaux's reported intention of a coup d'etat against his own country. This was contained in a document found in a cafe at Florence, and the memorandum was headed, "The Rubicon."

It must be said in passing that Caillaux's speech in the Chamber of Deputies made a great impression on all present, and so convinced were his colleagues that he could quash all the charges brought against him, and also because it was his own request, they decided to vote for the lifting of his parliamentary immunity.

Till further proof of the former Premier's guilt could be established Caillaux was allowed to remain free, though he was carefully watched in his every movement and was not allowed to leave the country.

KASHING HIGH SCHOOL HAS RECORD ENROLMENT

Adoption Of Selective System Made Necessary By Big Influx Of Pupils

(China Press Correspondence)

Kashing, October 13.—The Kashing High School has opened with a record breaking attendance, the enroiment in the High School department being 112 with nearly 100 more in the Higher Primary. In addition the Lower Primary numbers 27, making a total to date of not less than 235. The buildings have been taxed to the limit. The school authorities will from now on be forced to begin a selective process, with a view strictly to quality as against quantity. In this selective process mutual helpfulness, kindness, and every known method new or old will be employed to give each student the best possible chance. If in the end a pupil shows his fitness for business or some other sphere of activity rather than the schoolroom, he will be kindly but firmly informed of the situation, and his place be filled by more suitable applicants.

As to method, curriculum, and ideals, the school will stand more and more for life, for vital relationship between the classroom and real life of the home or street. Particularly in the teaching of the Bible will living realities be emphasised, such as the relation between Christ's laws, life, and ideals and the present time; the relation between the Bible and democracy; between the principles of Jesus and the principles of democracy; the ideals of Jesus as the foundation of the only real and lasting government, and the Christian church as the best example of true democracy, with mutual love, brotherly kindness, and living daily according to the law of Christ as proof of vital religion: such ideals as these will be the watchword for our young men in these momentous days in China.

The following account of a recent meeting of the local Christian Endeavor Society, prepared by one of our enthusiastic young leaders, Mr. Kuh Chin-ken, will serve as an index of how the principles of Jesus are beginning to take hold on the daily life of the students and local Christians:

"Last Sunday the members of Kashing Christian Endeavor Society met in the Kashing central church. The meeting was called by Mr. Wei Sing-tseh at two o'clock. In addition to some members of the Kashing Hospital and some Christians in the city, more than one hundred and fifty students of Kashing High School were present.

"Miss Elizabeth Talbot first reported that in Kinling Hospital a large new house was recently built for the consumptives. She said that it might be very successful; for some of the consumptives had already gotten better. Mrs. McGinnis also reported something about the missionary work done by the Chinese women in Mohkansan during the summer. Mr. Lowry Davis, the principal of Kashing High School, reported that the students of missionary middle schools and colleges were very faithful in doing their patriotic work this summer in Mohkansan. Every week they met in the church to discuss things of advantage to China.

"At the end of the meeting one member suggested that the streets near the church, the school, and the hospital should be cleaned up in order to improve the public health and also to stop any serious disease from spreading. It was decided that the streets near the church, the hospital and the school should be cleared up at once. They would also put some rubbish boxes along the streets. The students are going to emphasise the question of sanitation. It is hoped that the streets of the whole city will be cleaned up in the near future."

PEKING GETS REPORT ON SINO-CZECH TREATY

Demands Originally Made For Extraterritorial Rights Are Waived

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, October 17.—The Government has received word from Paris that the negotiations for a commercial treaty with Czecho-Slovakia are progressing favorably and that the delegate from Czecho-Slovakia who has been negotiating for this treaty has consented to waive his original demand that the privilege of extraterritoriality be granted to citizens of Czecho-Slovakia while resident in China. Chief Delegate Lu Tseng-hsiang, who is due to reach Peking early in December, will bring with him the present draft of the Czecho-Slovakian treaty, and all doubtful terms in the document will be settled with the Government after his arrival.

It is understood here that the Chinese delegates at Paris have had considerable difficulty in their discussions with the representatives of newly formed European states regarding the making of commercial treaties. The new states have all wanted extra-territorial privileges for their nationals in China and have pointed out that the Sino-Swiss Treaty, the ratifications of which were recently exchanged at Tokio, provides that Swiss citizens shall enjoy extraterritorial privileges in China. The Foreign Office has therefore cabled to its delegates at Paris to inform the representatives of all new powers desiring commercial treaties with China that the Sino-Swiss Treaty, although only recently ratified, was negotiated two years ago and cannot therefore be regarded as having any bearing upon the present situation. It is China's desire and intention to make no further commercial treaties that provide for extraterritoriality for foreigners residing within her jurisdiction.

Hankow Market

Finance And Money Market

The week under review was a quiet one with very little business doing. Bills were scarce, and there was very little demand. Taels T.T. on Shanghai. With the Banks importing, the rate rose to 96.8, at which rate a fair amount of business was done. Dollars opened at 71.4-71.6 buyers and sellers respectively, but fell again to 71.2-71.4, and closed with sellers at 71.3. Interest:—18% after being 15%. Changsha Exchange: 26.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods. There have been more enquiries, and a small amount of forward business has been done despite the dangerously high prices ruling in Manchester.

Yarn. The boom is as strong as ever, and prices are still higher than the previous week. There are any number of eager buyers. Clearances are remarkably good.

EXPORTS

A fair quantity of Sesamum Seed is reported to have been purchased, also small quantities of Gallnuts, Tallow and Hides. Cotton is strong but prices for other products are quiet with a downward tendency. With further advances in exchange, and American and European buyers holding off, business is very dull.
